

American University of Iraq - Sulaimani
Department of Information Technology

ITE 409 – Advanced Programming
Alan Amin

PROJECT

Write a Java application that will simulate a simple airline reservation system.

First, you will create the database on your computer using the supplied script.

As illustrated in the video, when the user runs the application for the first time, all seats are green which means “available” (because seat.s_reserved column’s values are set to 0 by the script). Once a seat of a flight is clicked, it turns red and the database is updated accordingly.